Some of such conventional systems provide an on-demand start of the engine and use a fuel injection circuit to start the engine which results in an undesirable engine start up. Others utilize the evaporator and condenser heat exchangers to start the engine in which case such systems are inefficient in their use of engine heat. Accordingly, it is desirable to provide an engine starting system which is effective in starting the engine and which utilizes as much heat energy as possible and is convenient and inexpensive.The idea to introduce a $5 fee to Florida's driver's licenses has been controversial.
